

ABSTRACT

The present invention discloses a new method for synthesizing an amide based on a fundamental mechanistic revision of the reaction of thio acids and organic azides.

5 Moreover, the application of this method to the selective preparation of several classes of complex amides in nonpolar and polar solvents, including water, is provided.